Have water and rags or sponges available for quickly cleaning any messes that may spread beyond your protected area.. Determine the reason for the damage and fix accordingly If it's a hole from a ceiling hook or other similar damage, you only need to fill the hole or dent before you apply the texture.. This allows you to have more control over the size and concentration of the aggregate used to get the popcorn effect.. If the damage is from water or other leaks, fix the leak and take care of any underlying damage before you repair the textured area of the ceiling.. This minimizes any pattern that may develop from the first application Don't overwork the area.. Apply the first pass until it overlaps the existing texture Randomize the effect.. If any of the damaged texture remains, your new texture may not stick Prime the damaged area.. Gradually add aggregate until you've matched the existing ceiling Protect your nontarget areas by covering them well, because this texture technique is quite messy.
